Marrakech pool gets an eyeful!

➔ IN THE past, she's complained about struggling to find swimwear to fit her surgeon-aided 32DD bust. So it seems that TOWIE star Jessica Wright simply decided to strap everything in tight via this knotty, black one-piece, while on her hols in Morocco.

And while we're not sure if these are sheepshanks, bowlines or midshipman's hitches keeping Jess from a pool-based wardrobe malfunction, we're pretty sure we've found the perfect "practice post" for any budding Venture Scouts to rehearse for their badges on. While Jess gets a tan. It's a win-win!

JUICY JESS!

SHE'S A
TOWIE
LEGEND!

Jessica has been a regular in all 11 series of TOWIE since the show started in 2010.

Touch The Drink drifted into its fifth hour...

TOWIE BABE!

Jessica on... Kate Middleton!

"I'd sex her up a bit with smoky eyes. I'd put her in my black lace dress with long sleeves – with her cleavage out!"

Her fitness regime!

"I've been on a fitness mission. I've been lifting weights and doing core exercises. I don't really like cardio though."

Keeping trim!

"Pizzas are my downfall!"

Fitness!

"I'm always trying to get into shape. You feel the pressure when you're in the public eye."

Her boobs!

"My boobs were fine before but I wanted them bigger. I'm about 9st but I probably weigh more now as my boobs weigh a pound each!"

Her boobs again!

"I was thinking about getting them reduced because they look a bit big. But I've realised I'm quite broad and tall so I can pull them off."

Undies!

"If your underwear looks great and is pulling you in and pushing you up where it should be, the layers that go on after that make the result better."

Matching undies!

"I'm terrible at wearing matching underwear. I think girls go for comfort unless they're impressing."

"Ha! Stop that,

I'm ticklish!"

"Stay perfectly still

36 stone boar bagged!

Legendary beast 'Hogzilla' shot by huntsman!

IT TOOK over a month of dedicated stalking for Jett Webb here to bag "Hogzilla" – a legendary boar thought to be a thing of myth – with one round from his AR-10 rifle. The eight-foot-long (2.5 metres) hog, thought to be 36 stone (230kg) of prime pig (they're not sure exactly – he broke the scales) was bagged in Bertie County, North Carolina, after evading hunters for years. Like a high-stakes hide'n'seek, where porker here came second!

3,000 BANGERS AHoy!

How to eat a porky giant!

By pig farmer/butcher of 20 years, Sillfield Farm's Peter Gott...

Hi Peter!
Would it be possible to eat an animal of this size?
That's a big animal! I must admit I've never seen one quite that big! The size isn't a problem. I've killed two or three boar over the past 15 years of a slightly smaller weight to this and had no issue. The only issue is that the older it is, the tougher the meat will be.

What cuts would you get from Hogzilla?

You could get steaks or joints from the legs, and from the middle you'd get cutlets and chops. Around by the flank, which is where the internal organs are, you'd have the belly. At the shoulder end, you have a lot of tougher meat, where you have the pig's head going up and down, so you'd break that down into the rib-eyes and then you'd send the rest off to go to mincing and turning into sausages.

How long would it take you to butcher an animal this size?

To cut this thing up the way I've described would probably take about an hour to an hour and a half.

You mentioned that because of it's age, the meat would be tougher. What could you use this tougher meat for?

You could make a goulash, a stew or a very, very slow cook. The older the pig gets, the tougher the meat, so therefore you may get some loin off the animal but it would be preferable to use it for slow cooking.

How many sausages could you get out of Hogzilla?

If the carcass is approximately 230kg, and an average catering sausage is 100g, give or take, you'd get between 2,500 and 3,000 sausages, or 2,000 to 2,500 burgers!

"Right, now to find
Potato Monster
for the mash..."

All-new Jack Whitehall gags!

The posho's latest funnies!

On dressing up!

"Growing up, I was quite flamboyant. Dressing up was one of the ways I liked to enjoy myself as a child. I had a phase that lasted maybe two or three years when I enjoyed dressing up as Robin Hood. Looking back at some of the photographs, some of my interpretations of Robin Hood were less Russell Crowe and more [camp astrologer] Russell Grant. I liked the feel of tights. That's why I like wearing thin jeans now. I like the feel of the tighter trouser."

On his family!

"I see worrying traits developing from my father. For some reason, [posh English actor] Nigel Havers seems to have been at every family moment throughout my life, including my birth. At the hospital, Nigel Havers was there and helped deliver me for no reason. Every birthday, he was there. I have my suspicions. Whenever I see Nigel, I look at him and think, 'You know, we are quite similar.' We're both quite foppish, charming and a little bit camp. My mum has always been very keen on Nigel. There was that holiday they took about a year before I was born. If I did Who Do You Think You Are?, we'd be on the phone to Jeremy Kyle pretty quick."

On Nike!

"Nike must fking love Cristiano Ronaldo right now, because they've had a bad run of it of late. Tiger Woods, Lance Armstrong, Oscar Pistorius... They really need to rethink that 'Nike. Just Do It' slogan. Maybe, 'Nike, are you sure you've thought this through?'"

On fights!

"I grew up on the mean streets of Putney. I once witnessed a posh fight at this dodgy, rough pub near to where I live called the Goose and Labrador, between these two posh guys. This guy pulled out a knife and cut the nose off someone's Brie. The fight spilled out onto the street, like two rutting stags in red trousers. In the melée, one of their mates shouted, 'Go on, Monty, he's dishonoured you!' like it was a duel!"

On TV!

"The first time I did Graham Norton, I thought it would be nice to bring my parents along to the recording. I said, 'Just behave, be nice to everyone.' They were in the green room. One of the other guests on the show was a guy called Usher. Usher is one of the biggest-selling R&B artists in the world. He's a superstar. Usher is there in the dressing room with a massive entourage, sitting in sunglasses looking really cool. I introduced my dad to Usher. I said, 'Father, this is Usher.' My father asked Usher for directions to his seat."

On going to the doctor!

"I thought I'd found a lump on one of my balls, so I went to the doctor to have it checked out. I sh*t you not, as soon as my testicles made contact with the palm of this guy's hand, he said, 'I remember who you are now.' Mate, don't say that. I know he meant my face, but all I could imagine was him thinking, 'I'd know these two anywhere!'"

On Wayne Rooney!

"Why would Wayne Rooney go home and play FIFA? He plays football all day long. That's like a soldier coming back from war and wanting to play Call Of Duty: Modern Warfare. Or a Scouser playing Grand Theft Auto. Sorry, I shouldn't make that joke. Scousers can play on whatever game they want. It just depends what's in the console when they steal it."

On intimate piercings!

"My father's a snappy dresser, he likes all the trinkets that go with a suit. He mentioned he had a thing called a Prince Albert. To me, a Prince Albert is a piercing in a very delicate area of one's anatomy. A Prince Albert is also a pocket watch on a chain. Do you know how terrified I was when he told me that my mum had bought him a new Prince Albert? 'She's had it engraved for me. She's put my initials on it so I don't lose it.' Then he asked me if I'd like to see it. I nearly had a heart attack when he asked if one day if I'd like to inherit it."

On school!

"A lot of people make assumptions about my school days. They think, 'Jack, he's really posh.' Just because I went to a posh public school doesn't mean I didn't have the same sh*t experiences anyone might have. We had a really horrible school bully called Asquith Montague-Boyd. He was really rough. He'd only been skiing like twice. Talk about common!"

On online poker!

"Some celebrity endorsements don't make sense. There's this online poker site who advertise with this professional card slinger. He's wearing a cowboy hat and he's like, 'Hey, my name's Chad. Last year, I earned a million dollars playing poker on this website.' Why the fk would I want to be in a game against a professional? You'll take all my fking money! I'll play on your site when you advertise it by carting out some dribbling guy in a onesie and Crocs shouting, 'Hello! My name's Barry! I borrowed my dad's credit card and I go all in on every hand!'"

On drinking!

"I've had to cut down my drinking lately because, shock horror, I'm a really aggressive drunk. A couple of weekends ago, I went out with some friends and I was picking a fight with a guy I had no right to be picking a fight with. He was like, 'Seriously, mate, you're not coming in here wearing those trainers.' I was like, 'Fine, whatever, I don't even want to come into your sh*tty mosque anyway!'"

On his dad!

"Any attempt my dad makes to use any technology is a no-go zone. Recently, he's started using emoticons in his text messages. Emoticons are those smiley faces 14-year-old girls use in their text messages. That makes it sound like I text 14-year-old girls. Anyway, he's started throwing them in with flagrant disregard for their meaning, with no context. I got one from him. [Does impression of his dad] 'Jack. Are you coming home for Sunday lunch? Your sister's going to be there. Winky face!'"

On the cinema!

"These guys were having a bad boy cinema club behind me and it went a bit like this. 'Hey, blud. Guess what I seen on DVD the other day?' 'What you seen on DVD, blud?' 'I seen The Iron Lady.' 'Was it any good, man?' 'Nah, it's sh*t. It ain't nothing like Iron Man.'"

● Jack Whitehall Gets Around will be on DVD later in the year.

South Park's banned scenes!

Missions you won't be playing in the new game!

➔ IT WAS a long time coming, but the new South Park game – out last week on PS3 and Xbox 360 – is pretty terrific. However, European players are getting slightly less than our American chums, as publisher Ubisoft made a “marketing decision” to remove a number of scenes they thought too racy for our poor eyes. Here's what we're missing...

"Hello... is that

The world's fastest car!

Koenigsegg's One:1 – world's first 'megacar' and will be its fastest!

- This carbon fibre-dripping wonder is the One:1, Swedish supercar chaps Koenigsegg's latest willy wave in the hypercar arms race. And we'll eat our titanium exhaust pipes if it doesn't soon become the fastest production car in the world.
- This is mostly because Koenigsegg has dubbed the One:1 the world's first "megacar". It reached this conclusion because behind the rear seats sit a 5.0-litre turbocharged V8 engine producing 1,360bhp. That's 1.0 megawatt of power.

- As it's a track-focused car, they say top speed isn't a priority, but we think they're being disingenuous. It's mind-blowing. 0-62 will pass in 2.5 secs, 248mph in 20.0 secs, to a top speed of 273mph. The current world's fastest is the 270mph Hennessey Venom GT.

Car had a freakishly
small tongue

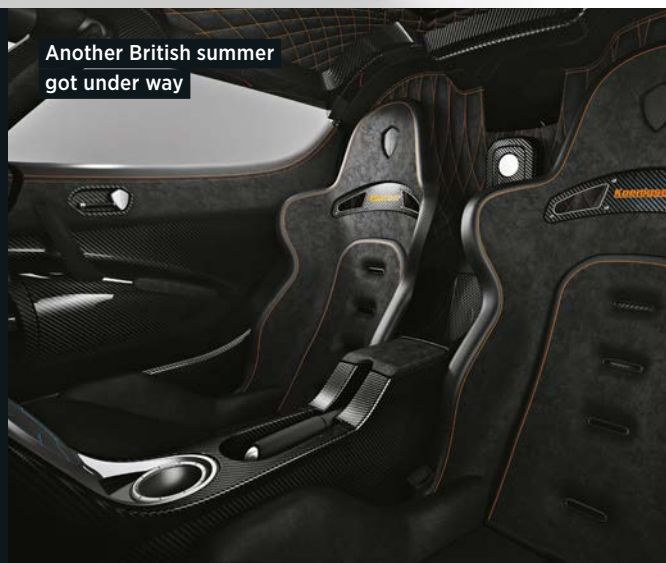

- With an anal approach to weight loss – Koenigsegg found, for instance, that 3D printing the titanium exhausts saved 400g – this means, hitting the scales at 1,360kg, the One:1 has a power-to-weight ratio of 1hp per kg. A world's first, and so impressive, it became the car's name.
- It also uses a new weave of carbon fibre that's 40 per cent lighter than their last hypercar, the Agera. And everything's carbon fibre – seats, wheels, body, monocoque... Even the sun visors, which Koenigsegg says saves 100g each.
- To make it the world's best track car, Koenigsegg has taken a new approach to aerodynamics. So cutouts under the front bumper weaken the carbon fibre, which is flexed by small motors to direct air through the body and out of the hood. Plus, it's the first road car to have a roof-mounted spoiler.

- Also, the car packs GPS, which will tell it not only which track in the world it's on, but actively adjusts the set-up for specific sections. It then uploads your lap's telemetry straight to your mobile.
- You want one, right? Well, you'll have to save up at least £1.5m. And wait for the second-hand market, as every One:1 was snapped up before the car was announced.

IMMERSIVE VIEW!

Inertial sensors, in tandem with a PlayStation Camera, track head orientation and movement. So as the player's head rotates, the image of the virtual world moves accordingly.

WORKS WITH MOVE!

Link it with your PlayStation Move controller and it'll throw in some virtual hands brandishing a sword/assault rifle/wand/whatever game-makers fancy. The hands will do what the Move is doing.

CLEVER INSIDES!

A 5.0in LCD panel inside sticks a screen in front of both eyes, at 960 x 1080p per eye, while an accelerometer and gyroscope ensure the world moves with you. An HDMI out throws your view to a TV for spectators.

SURROUND SOUND!

Alongside noises being thrown from front, behind, left and right, sounds will be heard from below and above, like soldiers stomping up stairs below, or Chinooks circling overhead. Cool!

EYE CANDY!

PS4 goes virtual reality!

Sony outs awesome high-tech headset!

THIS ADMITTEDLY slightly silly-looking thing is called "Project

Morpheus" and it's Sony PlayStation's punt on the future of gaming. While chips have got whizzier, and TVs more pixelly, gaming has still essentially been a console, a controller and a screen.

Morpheus, however, is a virtual reality headset which aims to stick you into a game, rather than spectating it.

We've unfortunately got no clue as to price or availability (although Sony have hinted it'll be similar to a PS4), but it probably won't be out any time soon. Still, exciting, eh?

Hands on!

73 mag editor Matt Hill had a go!

"The first thing that you notice about the Morpheus is how polished it is, even at prototype stage. This is a proper sci-fi headset. It's comfortable to wear, too, with no noticeable pressure on the head. When you have it on, you're literally in another world. I wouldn't bet against this coming to market sooner than expected."

"Who?" asks the passenger.

The cabbie replies, "Brian. He did everything right all the time, like me coming along when you needed a cab. Things like that happened to Brian every time. He was perfect."

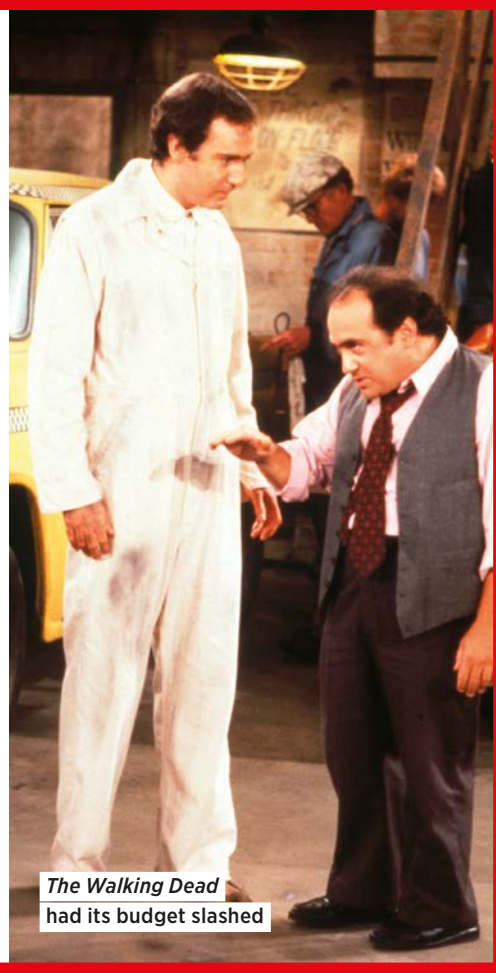

"Everybody has their faults," the passenger says.

The cabbie shakes his head. "Not Brian. He was a terrific athlete. He also sang like an opera baritone and danced like a Broadway star. He had a memory like a computer. He remembered everybody's birthday, knew all about wine, which foods to order. He could fix anything. Not like me. He never made a mistake. No one could measure up to Brian."

The passenger says, "He sounds amazing. How did you meet him?"

The cabbie answers, "Oh, I never actually met Brian. He's dead. I'm married to his fking widow!"

THE BRITISH Bounty

HUNTER

How one
Scottish bloke left his small town for a life hunting down America's most wanted...

Bored of your current job? Then why not take a leaf out of Christian Matlock's book. At the age of 25, he swapped getting into scraps in his small Scottish hometown for becoming a one-man law enforcer in the USA. In his own words, this real-life bounty hunter tells Nuts about a mad life like no other...

"Despite what I do for a living, I hate violence..."

"When I was in my teens, I used to fight for fun back home in Scotland. My uncle died in 2003 when I was in high school and I went off the rails quite a bit. I'd wanted to be a policeman in Scotland, but that was scuppered after I got into trouble with the law for protecting my girlfriend from a bloke who'd threatened her. So I decided to take advantage of my dad's US citizenship and look for work over there. Nowadays, I'm super-calm."

"I started my career at Bounty Hunting School..."

"At bail enforcement school – which anyone can apply to attend – they teach you the law and the ins and outs of what you can and can't do. There's the practical element too – like handcuffing techniques, which are more complicated than you'd think. Then it takes about a month to get your card through the mail before you can start working, at which point you go after all sorts – from some kid caught with half a joint to murderers."

"What I do is perfectly legal..."

"In most US states, I have permission to kick someone's door in without asking. The police have to knock and then wait – I can just smash a door down. You need a licence, a badge and are required to inform the local police what address you'll be at and which vehicle you're driving in – otherwise we just look like we're breaking in!"

"My first job was my proudest moment so far..."

"The day I had my licence through the post, I got a job from the bail bonds agency, who have to track people down if they've skipped bail. It was some guy who'd been on the run for six months, and I soon found out that they're the worst kind of jobs to get. I went to his wife's house. She lied, saying she hated him and hadn't seen him for months. Then, sat in my car, I saw my guy leave her house. I followed him to a supermarket and there – a 21-year-old lad from Scotland – I stuck my cuffs on this guy. I was shaking as I pushed him to the floor."

"Around 95 per cent of my job is research..."

"My job is chasing targets, but I spend most of my time interviewing their friends or, even better, their enemies. Bounties have usually upset someone at some point – a girlfriend, a landlord, whoever. On a bail form, you have all their details, so often they'll happily spill."

"Social media has become my number one tool..."

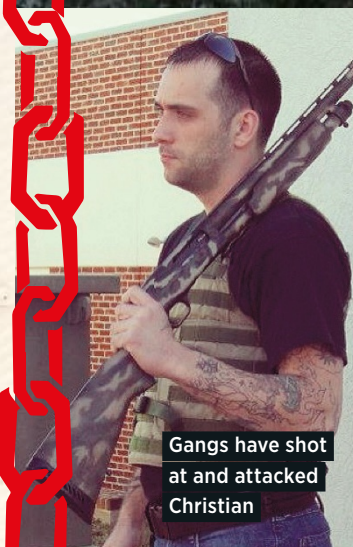

"I have several fictitious Facebook pages that I run. I'm a black female, a black male, an Hispanic guy... you name it. I tracked a woman near Virginia Beach using Facebook. Every day, she would actually check in at a coffee house, and write stuff like, 'Mmm... great coffee!' For three days in a row, she got coffee. The fourth day, she got me."

"I make most of my captures at around 4am..."

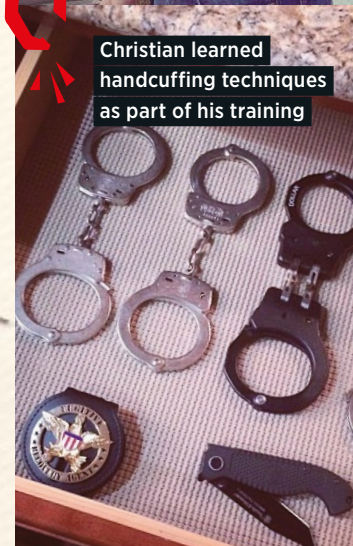

"I'd say 4am to 5am is my busiest hour of the day. We've taken strippers from their poles in front of a crowd, and a guy dressed as Kermit the Frog from a Halloween party. His friends had shopped him. One guy was running through a trailer park. He stopped, picked up a bicycle and threw it at me. The best thing was

Christian took on his first job aged 21

Gangs have shot at and attacked Christian

Christian learned handcuffing techniques as part of his training that his glasses fell off when he threw it, which meant he couldn't see sh*t in the dark! Someone else opened a door and threw a pitbull at us. You just have to get the mace out at that point. I always carry a big can of mace – it's needed for dogs and gang scenarios."

"Fugitives have one of three excuses..."

"Firstly, 'I moved house and I didn't know my court date – this is all a big mistake.' Secondly, 'My mum/relative is really sick so I skipped bail to look after them.' Finally, 'I was literally about to turn myself in!'"

"I usually catch people with a carrot, not a stick..."

"I often ring up cons pretending to offer them work. We caught a guy in a car wash using that technique. Call girls are another one. They often have websites offering their services as a stripper or something legitimate. You book them into a hotel, they arrive and then you cuff them."

"I've been shot at and attacked by gangs..."

"Not long after I started the job, I had to pick up a guy from a crappy, empty, old apartment. All was quiet, but before we reached the car, a hundred Mexican blokes from this gang appeared and surrounded us. The police showed up in the end but they didn't budge. These Hispanic gangs didn't give a fk! They were throwing bottles and stones at me and one guy ran up and booted me. Arrest is nothing to gangs. And I was once in a courtyard in a bad area – the kind of place you can get shot at for being the wrong colour or being a little bit different. We arrested somebody and walked them away, then suddenly a gun was fired and I hit the deck. That was horrible. Extremely scary."

"The pay is either great or terrible..."

"I can earn around $6,000 [£3,600] a month. However, with some jobs, you take the money but then you can't even find the guy. I've been after one man across 50 states for over three years now. That's not cost-effective at all. Also, taking into account the people and places I see, it's not always worth it."

Ricky Gervais!

The comedy legend on The Muppets and Twitter trolls!

Hi Ricky! How did you make the leap from your usual stuff to the Muppets movie?

I got a call during a tour from an American agent saying they wanted me to be the lead in the new Muppets movie. At the time, I thought I was too busy to do it, but my agent told me I was mad, and that I had to do it.

It doesn't sound like you were too keen at first...

Oh god, yeah! I've loved The Muppets for about 35 years. I saw the finished film for the first time yesterday and a chill went down my spine at the thought that I nearly didn't do it. I think it's great.

Sell it to us in a sentence.

It's mildly satirical and deconstructing of celebrity, it's sweet and the songs in it are brilliant and funny.

Is Kermit a bit of a diva?

Ha! It's funny because I made them [the puppeteers] carry on talking. Not only had they done an eight-hour day with their hand in the air, but then I made them stay in character between takes just because I wanted a chat with Kermit.

Do you find it hard working on stuff when you're not the mastermind behind it all?

I like to be in charge so I rarely take acting roles. When I do, I do my best, but then you're at the mercy of someone else. Not only was I relieved when I saw the final film but I was laughing from beginning to end. I thought it was fking great.

Do you still laugh at your other stuff as much as we do?

No, because I've been in the edit. I watched The Office go out, I watched Extras go out, I missed Derek go out because I was filming this and it was on at ten and I went to bed at nine. But no, I don't watch my own stuff. Also, with films, you've done the premieres so you've sat through them a few times before they go on TV.

There's a bit in the film where you're having dinner and keep getting interrupted by celebrities. Do any famous types hound you in real life?

Ha-ha! Erm, I don't know about that. The last famous person to call me was Chris Martin, asking me to do his charity gig. Whenever I get a call from someone famous, it's for a charity thing. You name anyone in Hollywood who does a charity and they've called me!

Does Keith Chegwin ever call wanting work?

Nah, he's doing alright now, I think. He's a much underrated actor, actually.

Are you famous enough?

I'm more famous than I should be. I think that's what confuses people. I deal in taboo subjects. I'll do things like Sesame Street or The Graham Norton Show and have fun with both, which confuses people. People who would normally do my kind of material wouldn't be as famous. I don't do anything to up my profile – I just do things I enjoy. If you want to up your profile, you can just do something fking stupid.

If you had to chuck all your awards away and keep only one, which would it be?

Fking hell! I don't know. My Golden Globes are very close to my heart, especially the one I won for The Office. The short film award I won for the 23-minute non-broadcast pilot of Derek is very close to my heart.

How long do you spend on Twitter each day?

About 20 minutes, I'd say. I do about ten two-minute bursts. I do more if I'm in the back of a cab. That's the good thing about Twitter – you're never alone, you don't have to read a beer mat if you're waiting for someone who's late to the pub.

Has anyone ever got under your skin with something they've tweeted you?

No, because it's like reading the graffiti on the back of a toilet door. I usually block people for stupidity, but what I'm doing now is blocking people who offend me, but I look at their tweets and the first 50 are complimentary, so they obviously just want a reply, so they insult me.

Would you ever go on Celebrity Big Brother?

I don't know why people need publicity, so no. If I lost all my money, you might get paid but then you've got to live with that. I think they'd have to say someone has got my family locked in a room and you've got to do Big Brother for a week. Even then I'd ask which members of the family they've got. Not that there's anything wrong with it, because I do watch reality TV. The Office came out of docusoaps and I got a whole scene out of Celebrity Big Brother for Extras.

Was it weird seeing Lionel Blair in there for real after he featured in your fictional version in Extras?

Unbelievable, isn't it? He even had the same cane!

Could you persuade Karl Pilkington to do reality TV?

I could probably get him to do anything, but I torture him for my amusement, not anyone else's.

Has Karl changed since he's been around the world and earned loads of dosh?

Generally, he's the same. People genuinely thought he was acting, didn't they? I think he knows what he's doing. He's really not an idiot. He's an actor when he's in Derek but he wasn't acting when he was doing the podcasts or anything.

If you could have four dinner guests, living or dead, who would they be?

They're alive at the dinner party though, right? I'm not having four corpses propped up or anything, am I?

No, they've come back to life for one night only.

Good, because I don't want a dead Winston Churchill, Laurel and Hardy and Sir Isaac Newton round the table. I think they're the first people to come into my head so they're the ones I'd settle on. What a fking party that is. On that note, I'm off to get drunk!

● Muppets Most Wanted is in cinemas nationwide from 28 March.

ROSIE PRESENTS...

101 Sexiest Brunettes!

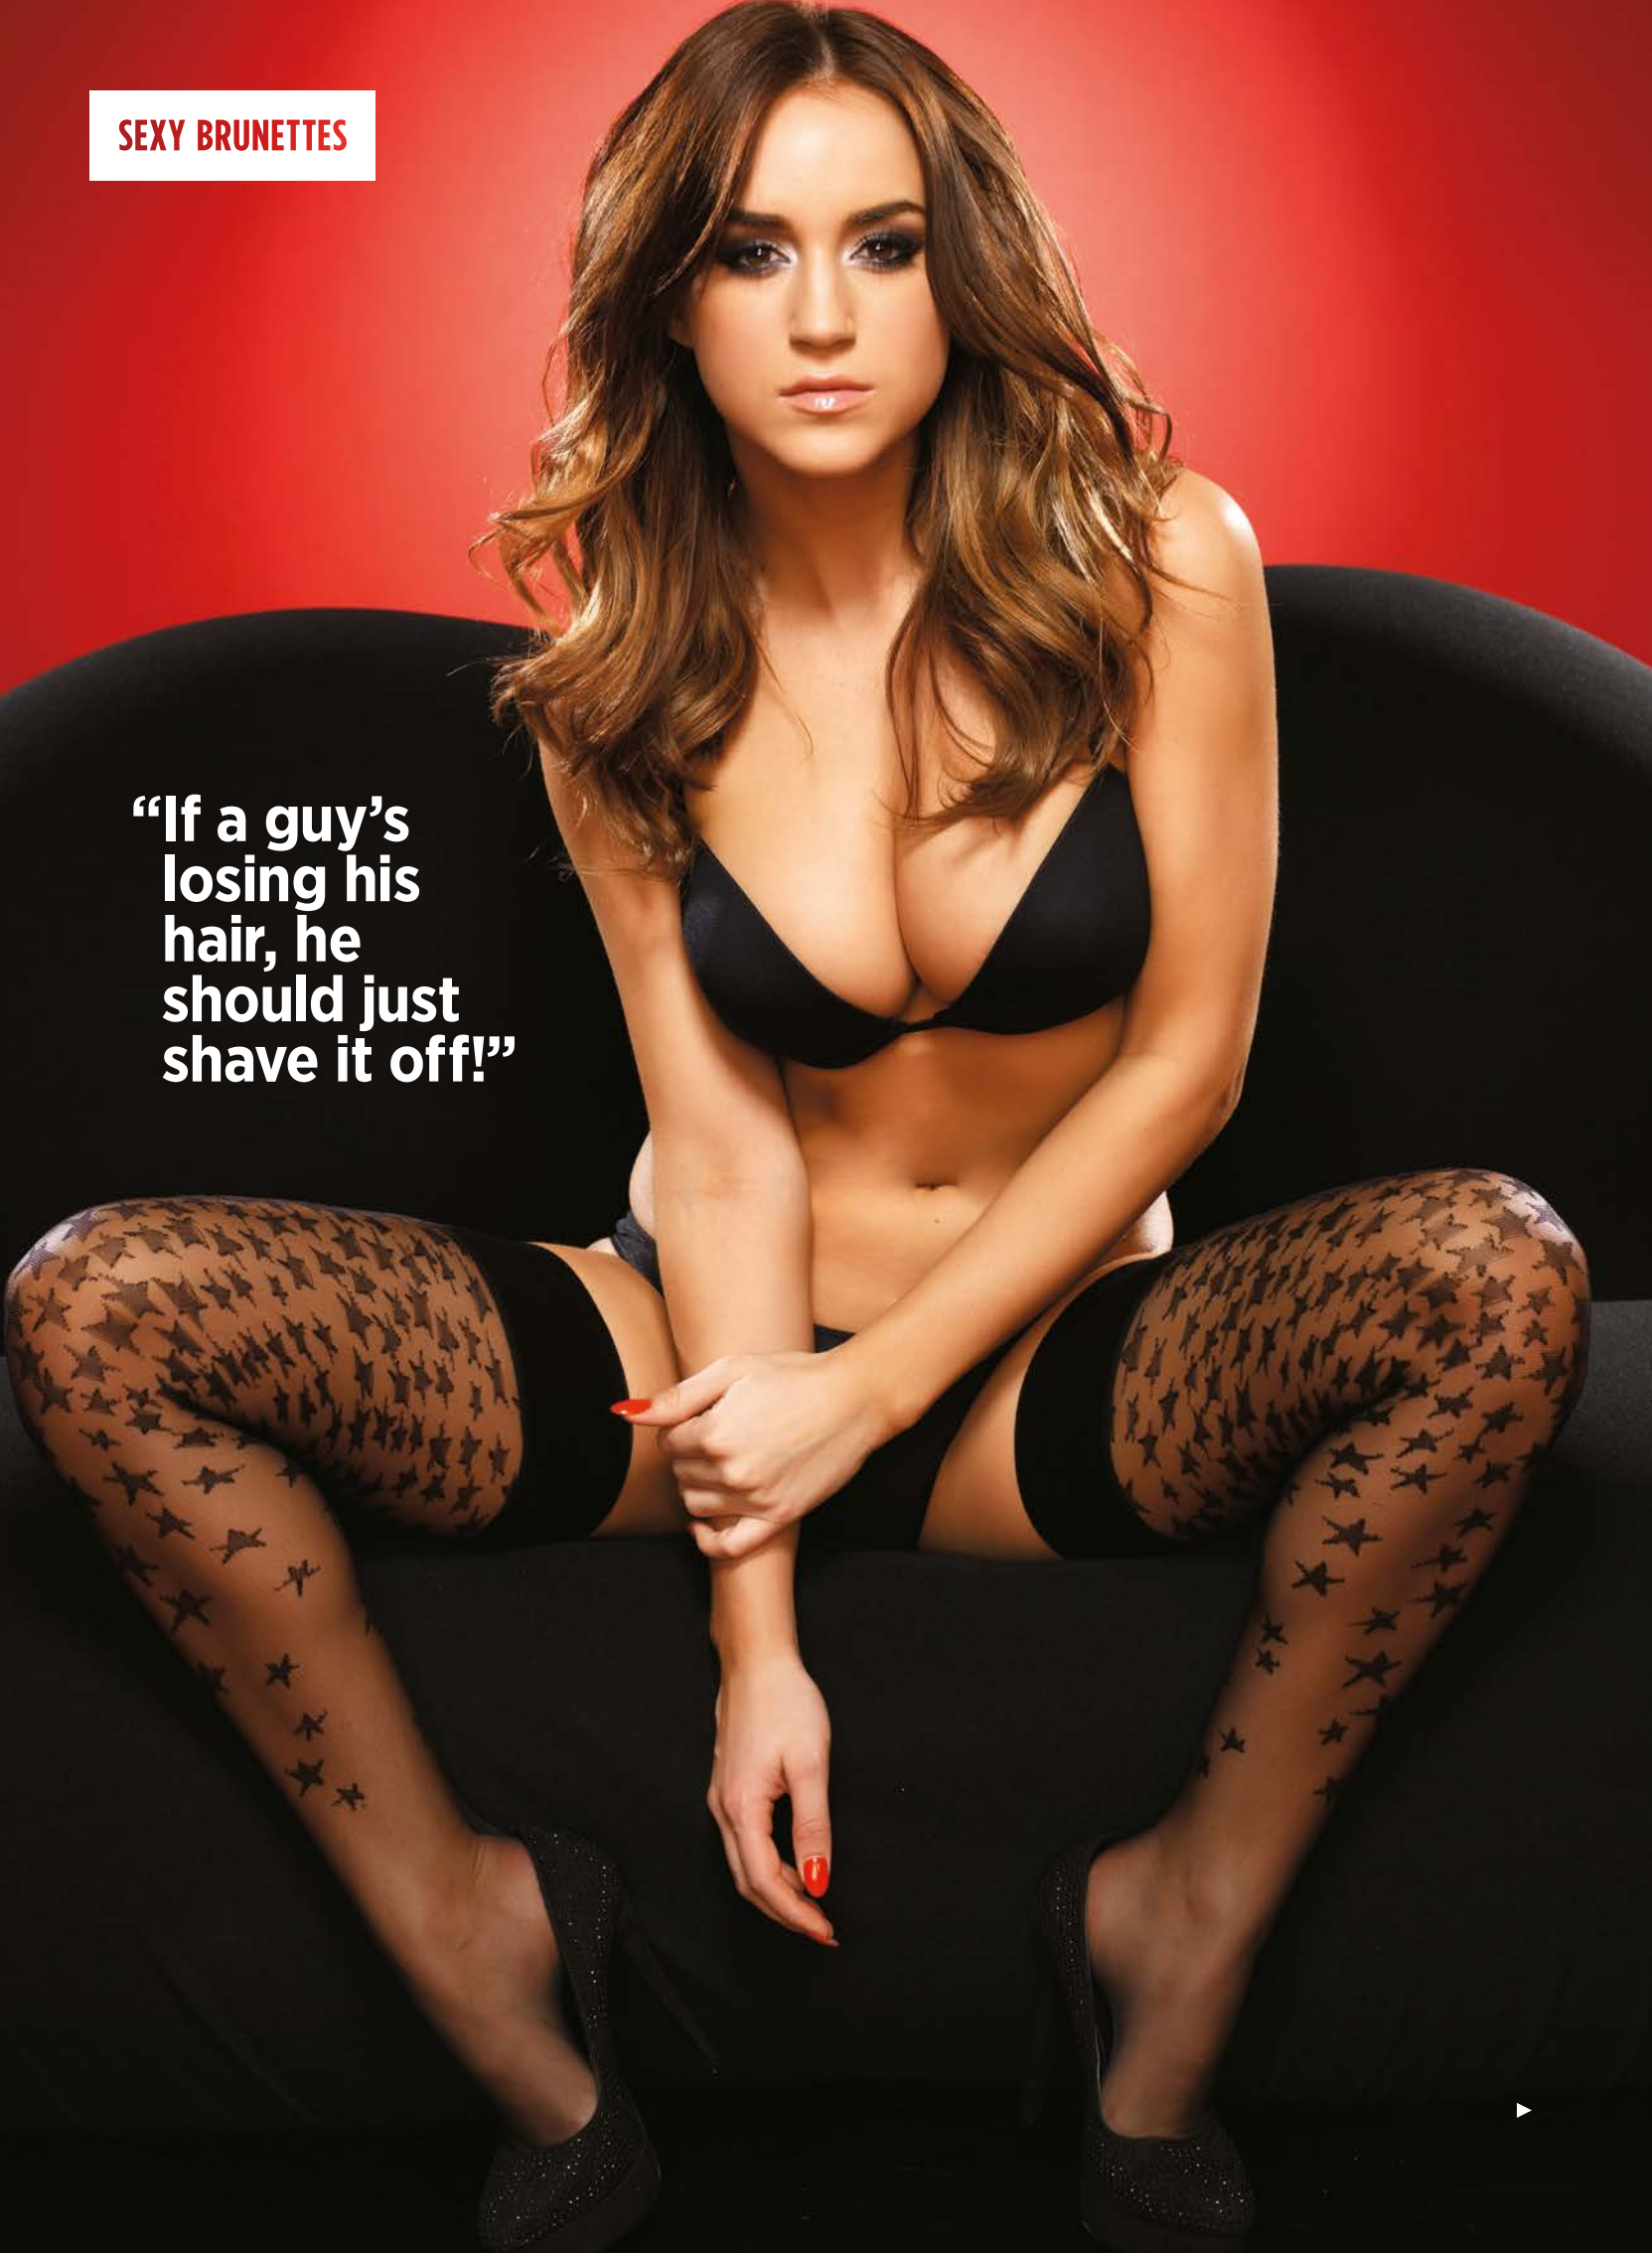

Our annual assortment of dark-haired hotties!

SEXY BRUNETTES

SEXY BRUNETTES

“If a guy’s losing his hair, he should just shave it off!”

Hi Rosie! To kick off our sexy feature, your top three hottest brunettes... Go!

Michelle Keegan.

She's just amazing, she always looks so sexy. I'm also a big lover of Jennifer Lopez – she's 44 now and still stupidly hot. And obviously Mila Kunis.

Enjoying today's solo shoot?

I love my girls – India, Holly and co – but honestly, they can get in the way. It's a serious business being a Nuts girl!

Do girls get as hung up on hair colour as blokes do?

As long as they're hot, I don't mind. But if a guy's losing his hair, he should just shave it off.

Are you partying this summer?

I'm going to America to take part in a car rally. Me, India and Holly are doing it. I don't even know why Holly's coming – she's never even had a lesson. She's still probably better than India, though.

Is India a dodgy driver?

The other day, she was driving me along a dual carriageway. I said, "India, are you on the wrong side of the road?" She just said, "Oh, am I?"

India gets a lot of stick. Does she never get her own back?

She sends me threatening pics all the time, like, "If you say anything else, I'll tweet this of you!" It's fine, I have pics of her asleep in posh restaurants – she was so drunk, I covered her in bits of burgers.

How do you get away with it?

I don't go to sleep first. I also wrote my name on her in spaghetti sauce when she passed out. She likes it!

Good stuff! Finally, then, how's your cute, deaf dog?

He's fine. He climbs on the bed each morning, looks me in the eye and wees all over the sheets. I'm trying to be patient with him. It's a good job he's not a bloke or he'd be out! ►

"I wrote my name on India in spaghetti sauce!"

From Geordie Shore to "Geordie phwoar!" Get a load of this Tyneside tyke. Is there something in the water up in the Northeast?

92 TAMARA ECCLESTONE

This billion-dollar babe must feel bloody lucky she didn't end up with her famous father's hair. Or height. Or looks. Well, anything, really!

93 MICHELLE KEEGAN

Michelle has said that being the "sexiest woman in soap" is a full-time job. We're fairly sure there are some factory workers who'd disagree. ►

94 ANNA KELLE

As one of the more sensible ones on MTV's The Valleys (and that's saying something) it's Anna's job to look all stern and sexy. Bravo!

95 CLAIRE COOPER

Thankfully, this dark-haired lovely is about as different from hard-nosed Hollyoaks jailbird Jacqui McQueen as possible.

96 LAUREN GOODGER

We have the Essex town of Brentford to thank for unleashing a battalion of brunette belles on the box – such as ex-TOWIE star Lauren here.

Her fellow fitties say she's a nightmare on a night out, but just look at her here – surely such a babe can't cause that much trouble?

101 JESSICA SHEARS

Slowly but surely, we're becoming addicted to this show, which consists purely of people watching television. The best characters are Steph and Dom, who own a B&B and who are permanently pickled. But we've also got a soft spot for Leon and June, who are in their 70s and obviously still love each other to bits. Aw!

THIS WEEK!

Black Water Vampire

Nuts tucks into a blood-soaked murder thriller with a bit of bite!

BLACK WATER VAMPIRE

Out now • 15

This week Nuts' cheap night in came courtesy of Black Water Vampire. We got the beers in, ordered some pizza and huddled round the telly to watch this found-footage horror flick.

Twenty years after a string of mysterious killings in the US town of Black Water, a documentary film crew turns up to investigate. The killings were pinned on local man Raymond Banks (played by Bill Oberst Jr, the chap from that creepy Facebook app Take This Lollipop) who's on death row, despite minimal evidence linking him to the killings.

All the victims had bite marks and had been drained of blood, but despite the suggestion they might actually have been killed by a vampire, the film crew refuse to accept a supernatural explanation. Believing Banks to be innocent, however, the film crew make it their mission to discover the truth before Banks fries.

Will any of the film crew survive? Is there a vampire behind the killings? Did someone in Film Club really need to scream that loud?

Verdict!

Here's what we think...

Nuts man Casey:

"Sure, it's a horror, but it's full of real-life characters and scares – rather than unrealistic 'jump' scares like you get in some flicks!"

Nuts man Mark:

"The acting is pretty decent all round, and the film's realistic, too, which makes the whole thing freakishly believable!"

Nuts girl Steph:

"It reminded me of The Blair Witch Project, or Cloverfield. And like those films, it's full of proper scares – I shrieked like... well, like a girl!"

VERDICT:

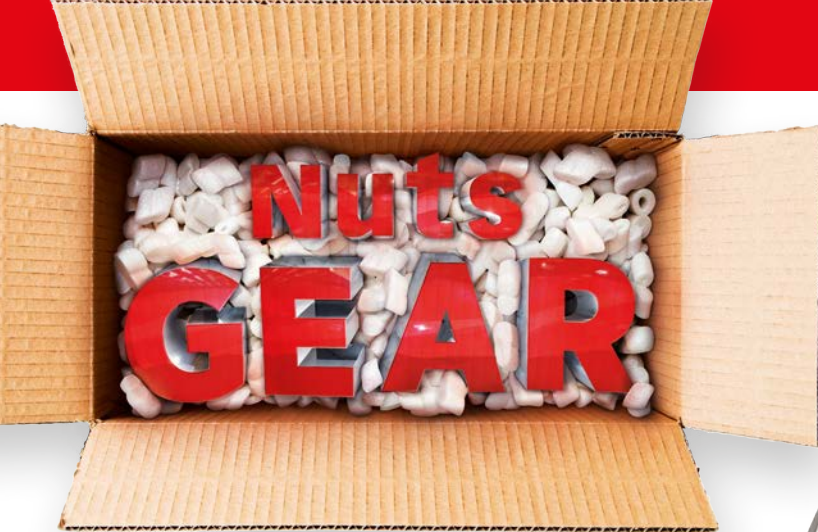

If you're a fan of classic horror, you'll be well into this. Edge-of-your-seat stuff!

10 RUDE QUESTIONS!

And a real girl to answer them!

Lauren

21 Essex

1 Where's the strangest place you've had sex?

"It was in Epping Forest in Essex, last summer. It was so exciting knowing someone could walk past at any time and catch us in the act. Luckily, they didn't, but I think a few cows got more than an eyeful!"

2 What's your favourite position?

"Definitely reverse cowgirl. I love performing and knowing that the other person can see everything in front of them. Being in control of their pleasure is a real turn-on for me."

3 What really turns you on?

"I'm a massive fan of instigating a bit of blindfolding. Not being able to see what's going to happen next is so exciting and it really heightens your other senses. Not knowing which part of your body is going to be touched next is an amazing feeling."

4 What's your trademark move in the bedroom?

"It depends on what mood I'm in and where I am! I love a lazy morning spoon, but being bent over and being a bit rude is definitely a favourite activity of mine. It's such a turn-on."

5 Is it better to give or receive?

"It's selfish, but of course it's always better to receive, isn't it? Who doesn't love to be pleased? Don't get me wrong, though – I can give just as good as I get. The best feeling is when it's at the same time, though."

6 What's your sexy outfit of choice?

"I've never dressed up in a costume or anything so it would have to be my birthday suit. There's nothing better than being completely naked with someone and exploring each other's body, letting them see every part of you."

7 Have you ever made a rude video?

"No, but I'd love to. Watching myself perform would really turn me on, and seeing myself from the other person's point of view would be amazing. I might even be able to see what I could improve on. Ha-ha!"

8 What's the rudest thing you've ever done?

"Probably having sex in a car. There we were, thinking there was no one around, only to look up to see three builders laughing into their tea at us. Though I suppose that was more embarrassing than rude. Ha-ha!"

9 What one thing would you like to try but haven't yet?

"I'd love to have a go at tying each other up, as I reckon that could be a bit of fun. That way you can use each other as sex toys!"

10 Have you ever got it on with a girl?

"Yes, and it was amazing! She was older than me and it obviously wasn't her first time with a girl. She knew what she was doing and I loved every moment!"

CONFESSION OF THE WEEK!

'We ran behind the bushes'

ONE SUNNY evening recently, while running in the park, I spotted a hot guy. He had dark skin and deep-brown eyes, and looked super fit. We got chatting and I could tell he was staring at my sweaty, heavy bust. We did a few lunges and press-ups on the grass before collapsing into a fit of giggles. My hand landed on his chest and he smiled as I noticed his manhood growing through his shorts. He took my hand and led me behind some bushes, where things hotted up, and he soon had his hands down my knickers. I was soon coming on his fingers, then we raced back to mine for more sweaty fun!

'I drove him totally wild'

I WAS given some driving lessons for my birthday, and when the instructor's car pulled up for our first lesson, I saw the hot hunk with sexy blue eyes in the driver's seat and couldn't believe my luck! As the weeks went by, I could tell he wanted me but was trying to be professional. One day, as he touched the gearstick, I placed my hand on his and guided it towards my cleavage. He pulled into a quiet side road and I kissed him, running my tongue down the top of his open shirt, then went down on him. He was soon moaning to bursting point. He stopped me just in time – the guilt getting to him – but I'll get him next time!

Victoria Hull

'His six-pack got me hot'

LAST SUNDAY was the hottest day of the year so far and we made the most of it. We got the barbie out and invited a few mates round. My fella was in his shorts with no top on, and I was turned on by his sexy six-pack. Soon the beers began to flow but I couldn't get his attention, so I went upstairs alone, feeling horny. I found my Rampant Rabbit and settled down for some fun. As I was releasing my tension, the door opened and my man entered the room. He was startled but pleased, and walked over to the bed, sunk to his knees and took over with his tongue, while caressing my breasts. Moments later, I had the most amazing orgasm. It was the best barbecue ever!

Nuts HOOK-UPS CONFESSIONS!

"I've recently come out of a long-term relationship but found myself missing the regular sex. Not one to go out and pull in clubs, I joined Nuts Hook-Ups to see if I could meet some cheeky lads in my area. I didn't think anything would come of it, but within an hour of browsing some really cute guys, I was flirting with a lad from the town next to mine. He was just as cheeky as me, and you can imagine how excited he was when I suggested a bit of webcam fun involving me and my brand new vibrator! We're meeting up this weekend to take things further, so I might have an even cheekier confession for you next week!"

EXCLUSIVE!

Welcome to squeaky bum time!

MOTD's Jonathan Pearce on the tightest title race in years!

TEAM TEMPERAMENT

"The old heads will steer them through the battle for points in the title run-in."

MANAGERIAL EXPERIENCE

"Mourinho is closing on an eighth title in 12 years! He's put pressure on City."

CURRENT FORM

"Gritty. Not attractive. The Villa defeat shows they have to retain their focus."

DIFFICULTY OF RUN-IN

"Liverpool away are the only top-half club they have to face, possibly between the Champions League semi-finals. I have them for a draw there. If they win it, the title will be theirs. Among the five games to play against relegation-haunted clubs, they could drop points at Swansea after the Champions League quarter-final."

INJURIES AND SUSPENSIONS

"It would be a body blow if they were to lose Cech, Hazard or Terry. Otherwise, a big squad can cope."

CHelsea

JP'S VERDICT: "At the time of writing, they haven't met Arsenal. If they win that and don't lose at Anfield, the title's theirs!"

LIVERPOOL

DIFFICULTY OF RUN-IN

"They've won six of their last eight league games at West Ham so why do I see that as a banana skin? I have a sneaky feeling two vital points will be dropped there and at home to Chelsea. Suarez and Sturridge have enough pace to put Man City to the sword in the other crunch. But they might have to win every game to land the title."

CURRENT FORM

"At the time of writing, they've registered eight wins in ten league games so far this year. Fantastic! Flowing football with pace, precision and power going forward. But the defence still raises questions."

MANAGERIAL EXPERIENCE

"Brendan Rodgers is so cool under pressure. He's had a great Premier League season so far. But now he's entering uncharted territory. He'll win things for Liverpool. He has them dreaming again. A fine man!"

INJURIES AND SUSPENSIONS

"If Suarez were to lose his cool and get sent off, it'd be disastrous at this stage. They can't afford to lose Gerrard or Mignolet either. The return of Lucas is timely."

TEAM TEMPERAMENT

"It's been a long time since they got over the finishing line in front. They were beaten at Chelsea and Man City and need to show more mental strength in the return games."

JP'S VERDICT: "They'll go into the final games in with a chance. Dropped points against West Ham and Chelsea will leave them third – but what a great campaign!"

DIFFICULTY OF RUN-IN

"The trip to Chelsea (still to be played at the time of writing) started a really difficult run for Arsenal, with Man City at home and Everton away among their next three games. Beyond that, it's wins all the way for me. But the damage will have been done to their title pretensions before then."

CURRENT FORM

"I think they'll have picked up a point at Chelsea and then won't lose another game after that. They've had a superb season and must train their focus on winning the FA Cup. They dropped too many points against title rivals earlier in the campaign to win the league title. Overall, though, their form has held up."

TEAM TEMPERAMENT

"The recent 1-0 league win at Spurs showed that they have far more resolve this season than in previous years. They've kept bouncing back when people have written them off. Players like Szczesny have greatly matured. Last weekend's result at Chelsea will have revealed more about their temperament."

INJURIES AND SUSPENSIONS

"Losing their most creative players – Özil, Ramsey, Walcott and Wilshere – will cost them. I can't see them having enough to win at Chelsea, or at home to City, or at Goodison. The loss of Ramsey has been devastating."

MANAGERIAL EXPERIENCE

"In 1997-98, Wenger had to win ten of his last 12 games to land the title and succeeded! He's been through the wringer in recent seasons but is now ready and desperately hungry to land silverware again. It won't be long now."

JP'S VERDICT: "They might finish fourth below Liverpool on goal difference. On the final day, they'll be counting the damage caused by defeat to Villa on the opening day."

ARSENAL

DIFFICULTY OF RUN-IN

"They should win their home games. But their form doesn't inspire confidence for away games at Man United, Arsenal, Liverpool and Everton. United will be playing for pride. City have only won four in their last 40 at Arsenal. I can't see them holding Suarez at Anfield. Two more dropped points will be fatal."

CURRENT FORM

"Home form should guarantee 15 points from 15. Away is another matter. They were brilliant at Spurs and dug deep at Hull. But at Norwich, they were lacklustre. Chelsea, Barcelona and Wigan have shown what it takes to derail the City express."

INJURIES AND SUSPENSIONS

"They've missed Sergio Aguero and need him fit to swing those away games. They can't afford to lose Joe Hart on current form or Vincent Kompany again."

MANAGERIAL EXPERIENCE

"Mourinho, Pellegrini's nemesis from La Liga, is haunting him. He's calm and stoic but does he have the passion for the run-in? Time will tell. I like the man."

TEAM TEMPERAMENT

"When things go well, when Yaya Toure is on top of his game and Aguero is fit, they're the best team in the land. I have my doubts over a couple of key players but they've been through a run-in before and know how to win in a photo-finish."

JP'S VERDICT: "Mourinho says its City's to lose and he's right. If they win all their games, they'll be champions. But early away defeats will have undermined their season."

JP's final verdict!

"The tightest Premier League title race ever might see all four teams still in with a shout on the last day and it could even be settled on goal difference. If that's the case, then it'll be City's crown. But I predict..."

1. CHELSEA – 86 PTS
2. MAN CITY – 84PTS
3. LIVERPOOL – 82PTS
4. ARSENAL – 82PTS

Meet F1's new breed!

A bluffers' guide to the drivers barely old enough to buy a beer!

➔ THE LEADERBOARD at the Australian Grand Prix had an unfamiliar look to it, mainly because Sebastian Vettel and Lewis Hamilton weren't on it, but also because we hadn't heard of half of them! However, Nuts being the mag that educates as well as entertains, we now present guides to the next generation of F1 superstars...

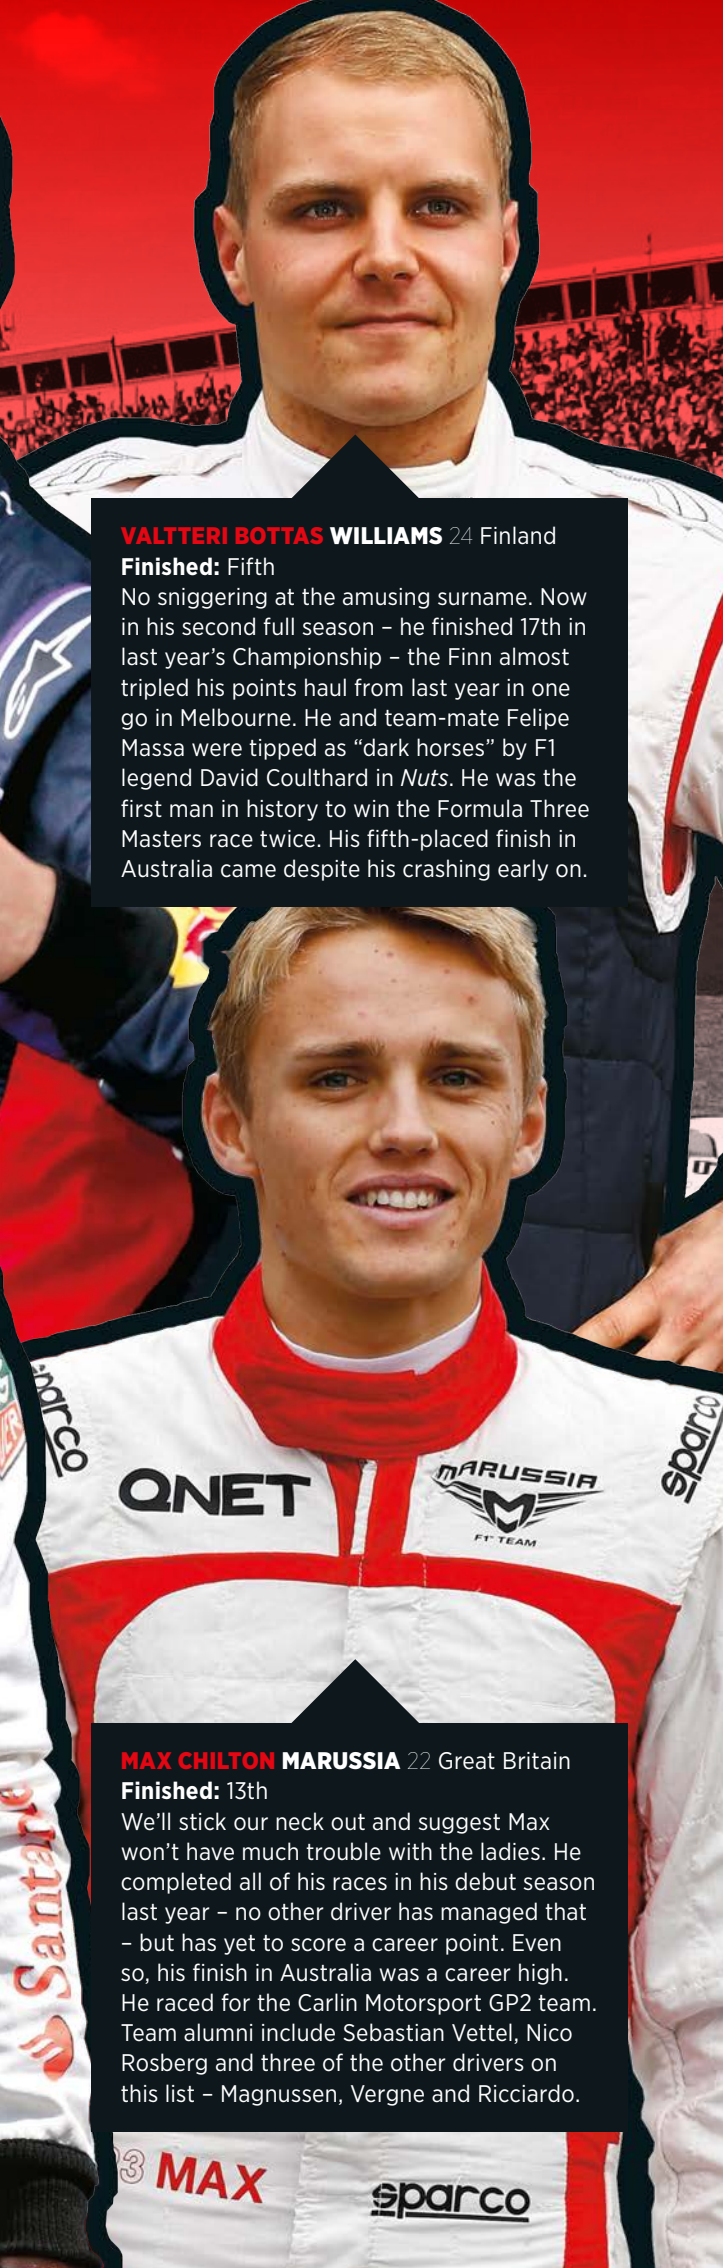

● The Malaysian Grand Prix, BBC One/HD & Sky Sports 1/HD, Sunday 30 March, 9am.

DANIEL RICCIARDO RED BULL 24 Australia
Finished: Second (subsequently disqualified)
Red Bull replaced one chinny Australian with another when Mark Webber retired. Ricciardo is a relative veteran – this is his fourth season in F1. In 2010, in Abu Dhabi, he competed in a single-lap competition for young drivers and clocked a lap that was 1.3 seconds faster than Sebastian Vettel's. He was denied his first podium in Australia because his car exceeded the maximum allowed fuel flow. Yeah, that old chestnut.

DANIIL KVYAT TORO ROSSO 19 Russia
Finished: Ninth
The impossibly fresh-faced Russkie was brought into the Toro Rosso team to replace Daniel Ricciardo, who left for Red Bull. In his first race, in Melbourne, he became the youngest ever driver – at 19 years and 324 days – to achieve a points finish in a Grand Prix. He comes from the Republic of Bashkortostan, the largest republic in Russia. His favourite foods are mozzarella cheese and black caviar. He lives with his mum.

JEAN-ERIC VERGNE TORO ROSSO 23 France
Finished: Eighth
The Frenchman (booooo!) is in his third season with Toro Rosso. With them, he has secured finishes of 17th and 15th in the Drivers' Championship. In 2012, he racked up a £21,000 fine for clattering Heikki Kovalainen's car and being declared responsible for said clattering. His father owns a go-karting track, upon which Jean-Eric started racing at the age of four. He has 121,000 followers on Twitter.

KEVIN MAGNUSSEN MCLAREN 21 Denmark
Finished: Second (promoted from third)
Proving that not everybody rebels against their parents is Kevin, whose father Jan was also an F1 driver. Pops drove for the McLaren team in 1995 and the Stewart-Ford team in 1997 and 1998. Indeed, the father and son are the only two Danes to achieve a points finish in an F1 race, with dad gaining a point in the 1998 Canadian GP. Son did better in his first race, the first debutant to achieve a podium finish since Lewis Hamilton in 2007.

VALTTERI BOTTAS WILLIAMS 24 Finland

Finished: Fifth

No sniggering at the amusing surname. Now in his second full season – he finished 17th in last year's Championship – the Finn almost tripled his points haul from last year in one go in Melbourne. He and team-mate Felipe Massa were tipped as "dark horses" by F1 legend David Coulthard in Nuts. He was the first man in history to win the Formula Three Masters race twice. His fifth-placed finish in Australia came despite his crashing early on.

MAX CHILTON MARUSSIA 22 Great Britain

Finished: 13th

We'll stick our neck out and suggest Max won't have much trouble with the ladies. He completed all of his races in his debut season last year – no other driver has managed that – but has yet to score a career point. Even so, his finish in Australia was a career high. He raced for the Carlin Motorsport GP2 team. Team alumni include Sebastian Vettel, Nico Rosberg and three of the other drivers on this list – Magnussen, Vergne and Ricciardo.

Stuart Hall: 'Ibiza nearly killed me!'

The bantamweight champ on his next fight!

➔ Hi Stuart! How have things been with you since claiming the IBF bantamweight title last December?

I'm very well, thanks! Life's been fantastic since winning the world title.

Have you changed anything for your forthcoming first title defence?

It'll be exactly the same. I'm getting stronger all the time and I feel like I'm in my prime. There are still a few doubters out there, so I'm out to prove I deserve to be a world champion. I'm going to keep hold of this title.

What of your opponent, Martin Ward?

He's been spouting off saying he beat me up in sparring, but I can't even remember the last time I sparred him. He'll be a bit sharper than the last guy I beat, but he'll slow down and I'll do a number on him.

What's the deal with you and Ibiza?

When I was 19, I went to Ibiza for a two-week holiday and I ended up there for five years. If I carried on doing what I was doing in Ibiza, I don't think I'd be alive now, to be honest!

Who would play you in the film of your life?

It'd have to be someone with a bald head. Jason Statham could be a contender but he might be a bit too old.

Do you ever laugh at what you've achieved?

I do sometimes! I'm from a council estate so I'm just enjoying it while it lasts.

Finally, you're a Man United fan. How do you think they'll get on this season?

Man United can't go too long without winning trophies, so it'll be interesting to see if Moyes is there this time next year. And £300,000 a week for Rooney? I get punched in the head for 12 rounds and don't get that sort of money!

KAMMY!

He's the voice of the fans – and he's only in Nuts!

You have to take Liverpool seriously!

Anfield outfit have a real chance of title!

➔ MAKE NO mistake – Liverpool, despite all the talking down, are title contenders. They have some very winnable fixtures in the offing, and the chance to take points off the big boys at Anfield later on. And their home record this season is nigh on impeccable. This is the best run-in I can remember. Normally, one or two sides have fallen away by now, as was the case last season, so a four-horse race is great for the game.

Chelsea are favourites, regardless of what Mourinho might say, Man City are second favourites, then Liverpool, then Arsenal, but once they get players like Ramsey back, they're back in with a great chance, too!

"Second base, Luis? I don't think so!"

Kammy's Champions League quarter-final predictions!

BARCELONA VS AT. MADRID

"Atletico have had a great season and kept pace with the two giants in La Liga, but there's only one winner here, and that's Barcelona, possibly home and away. It's the worst draw Atletico could have hoped for. If they'd drawn Real, at least it would've been an occasion."

Verdict: Barcelona

REAL MADRID VS DORTMUND

"Again, I can only see one winner here and I'm sure I don't need to tell you it's Real. Dortmund were the team everyone wanted – they're not the same side as last year and so, again, I can see it being a home and away win situation for the Spaniards."

Verdict: Real Madrid

PARIS SG VS CHELSEA

"If there's one team who are equipped to nullify the threat of Zlatan Ibrahimovic, it's Chelsea. He won't be relishing playing against a team like Chelsea, who aren't open and expansive, and I back them to shut him down and go through over the course of two legs."

Verdict: Chelsea

MAN UNITED VS BAYERN MUNICH

"If United can enjoy the kind of momentum and luck they had in the second leg against Olympiakos, and also build their confidence between now and the first leg, then Moyes' men could pull off a shock but, being realistic, Bayern are the clear favourites."

Verdict: Bayern Munich
